GERMANS IN CHAMPAGNE DECLINE TO BATTLE WITH YANKEES

MORE THAN 360 AMERICANS LOST IN SINKING OF OTRANTO

DEVELOPMENTS IN WOEVRE REGION MAY CHANGE WHOLE ASPECT, DECLARES EXPERT

Kaiser's Troops Have Orders to Hold Suippe Line Until October 13 at All Costs; British and French Pressing On.

CROWN PRINCE MAKES VERY HASTY DEPARTURE

(By Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The Americans are closing in on Dun-sur-Meuse while their left wing is within five miles of Buzancy, says Marcel Hutin in the Echo de Paris

Continuing he says important events that will change the entire face of things may be expected in this part of the Woevre front Orders found on prisoners, says M Hutin, show that the enemy was instructed to resist on the Suippe river front until the 13th at least in order to save all the material possible and to enable the adjacent armies to conduct an orderly retreat

Although the Germans had 25 divisions in the Champagne sector, 12 of which were fresh, the fear of being rushed caused them to decline battle

The crown prince has moved his headquarters from Mexieres in hot haste.

FRENCH GAIN ON CHAMPAGNE FRONT

PARIS, Oct 12—Continued progress was made last night by French troops along the entire Champagne front, the war office announced today The French have penetrated the important railway towns of Vouziers

This morning the French were holding the general line of the Retourne and the road from Pauvres to Vouziers.

LONDON, Oct. 12—British forces last night continued their advance north of the Sensee river Field Marshal Haig announced today The advance is in the direction of Douai. PERSHING'S MEN CONTINUE ATTACK NORTH OF VERDUN

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Oct 12—(Noon)—General Pershing's forces continued their attacks against the German positions on this front today German opposition proved even more bitter if possible than it was yesterday

GERMANY A LITTLE NEARER THE BRINK OF DISASTER TODAY

By Associated Press.

PARIS Oct 12—Today find Germany a little nearer the brink of disaster Marshal Foch's broom, applied in the Champagne this time, has swept the enemy back from a wider section of the front than ever before

General Ludendorff now is reaping the results of the cardinal error he made in thinking that the Allied offensives were bound to be spaced at wide intervals like his own. The continuity of the attacks has literally dumbfounded the Germans and it is plain that there is vacillation at grand German headquarters

For instance the evacuation of the Belgian coast appears to have been ordered and then countermanded, which justifies the inference that General Ludendorff is no longer guided by purely military consideration but from fear of the demoralizing effect a retreat on a large scale would have in the interior or with the idea that the more territory remains in his hands the stronger will be Germany's position in its conversation with Washington In the meantime General Ludendorff is letting precious time slip by for which it is likely he will repent sooner or later

At the beginning of the week it was the turn of the left of the Allied forces which struck it in the direction of [illegible] and Guise Yesterday it was the right that delivered the blow along it in the direction of Mezieres Whether both wings break through or only one is immaterial The result would be the same and the longer the Germans resist what appears to be the inevitable the worse for them.

SCOTTDALE BOY HAS A STRENUOUS MIXUP WITH A GERMAN SHELL

After Crawling 250 Yards, Seriously Wounded, He is Hurled from Stretcher Across Street.

Special to The Courier

SCOTTDALE Oct. 12—How, after he was wounded—shot through the muscles of the abdomen—James Clarkson, son of Mr and Mrs William Clarkson, of Arthur avenue Scottdale, crawled 250 yards to a spot where four fellow soldiers were located and how while they were carrying him in a blanket to a dressing station a shell burst near them, hurling all across the street, is told in a letter from Clarkson to his parents

Clarkson is a member of Company G 110th Infantry The bullet struck him in the right side of the abdomen and tore across, coming out at the left side. To make matters worse when the shell burst a part of a building tumbled onto him but fortunately he escaped this mishap with only minor hurts. Eventually he was landed at the dressing station and then an ambulance took him to the field hospital

The Red Cross nurses are "perfect angels of mercy," says Clarkson and the doctors are the best he has ever seen. "Every day is Christmas for those in the Red Cross hospitals as every day either the Red Cross or the Y M C A brings packages of goodies The packages contain cigarets, candy etc., he adds

Clarkson enlisted with Company E Mount Pleasant, but was transferred to Company G Altoona.

LOAN TEAM MEN RAISE $187,500 IN FEW MINUTES

Feat Is Accomplished After Friday Dinner By Doubling Subscriptions.

COUNTY TOTAL $5,613,750

Reports From Territory About Connellsville Are More Encouraging, But Quota for District is Far From Being Reached; Hustle, the Word.

Setting an example which it is hoped citizens of Connellsville will follow canvassers on the various Liberty Loan teams have raised an additional $187,500 by increasing their own subscriptions and bringing the total amount subscribed in this city to $1 051 050 After the reports had been made yesterday the solicitors were urged to extend every effort to increase the total by asking those who had already subscribed to double their subscriptions The canvassers started in by increasing their own purchases and raised almost $[illegible] within a half hour

Stirred by the enthusiasm of the rousing after-dinner meeting the canvassers went to work yesterday afternoon and it is probable that many more thousands of dollars will be turned in at the next report The committees here do not intend to stop now until enough is raised to set Connellsville safely over the top

The people of this city are asked to look on the purchase of bonds not only as an investment and a loan but as a patriotic duty a duty that must be done This city has been allotted a share in the loan and it must be subscribed "The allotment is no more than we can take," said J L [illegible]ton chairman of the local executive committee this morning "and we will subscribe it but everyone must take his share to do his."

Reports coming here from the headquarters in Uniontown regarding outlying territory in the Connellsville district are somewhat encouraging but none of them indicate that any township or borough with the exception of Ohiopyle have more than half attained their quotas Solicitors [illegible] Springfield and Saltlick townships are confident of reaching their quotas and are working hard

Tomorrow two automobile loads of men will go into the mountain districts at the request of the [illegible] there and endeavor to stir up enthusiasm for the loan One automobile load will go to [illegible] and the other to Indian Head Four men who have volunteered their services are Robert Norris A B Hood J T Norton and A O Bixler Several others are needed

Persons who have already taken out bonds but who have not yet made the first payment on them are urged to do so as soon as possible The initial payment is due on October 24 but in order to get a report in to the government by that date it will be necessary for the first installment to reach the bank at least by October 21

Very few first payments have been made and everyone is urged not to overlook this important duty In order to be given credit for the subscriptions that have been pledged to this city Connellsville must report sufficient first payments to cover them

Official reports from Uniontown headquarters give the total for the county as $5,613 750 and it is expected that the $6 000 000 mark will be reached today The quota for the county is over seven and a half millions

HOSPITAL FINE PLACE

Soldier, Wounded, Regrets He Has to Leave Its Hospitable Walls.

That life in the hospitals in France, where one gets every attention, is immensely more pleasant than in the field is indicated by Clarence William Durbin, of Dickerson Run, writing to his parents, under date of September 14. He says:

"I am leaving this hospital today at 3:30, and I wish you could imagine the picture of health I am. Mother, I hate to leave this place. I have had a plenty of pleasure here, and such a fine lot of fellows in this field hospital outfit. I played baseball almost every evening with the boys here for the past ten days. I have been here sixteen days and I had my knee fixed up as good as new in the first five days. The boys all boast of their good surgeons and officers in this outfit. Well, if you are in as good health as I am, your health is perfect. I certainly do feel like I could whip a whole regiment of Germans. They brought a little French boy into the hospital who had his leg cut off at the knee with a scythe. He surely has some nerve. He has been laughing ever since he come in. I believe it is born in them. All kinds of French people are coming in to see this lad; he certainly seems very popular—some very pretty French girls, too, kissing him. It makes me wish I were the boy, ha, ha. No, mother, I do not care for any of their kisses. All I want is to get this war over with, then back home to you and dad and all who are dear to me.

"We leave here in one hour and we ride for 40 miles to camp and from there I expect to get back to my old Company I. Well I will close, hoping you are all happy. Write often. I sure do love to get letters from my dear sisters, and home news helps us a lot to be good; and when I get home my look will prove the truth. Until then we will put our trust in God."

He Didn't Understand.

The company quartermaster sergeant frowned at the raw recruit.

"What is your name?" he roared.

"William Weaknob, sir," said the Tommy.

"When did you enlist?"

"Last Friday, sir."

"Are you leaving an allotment?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who to?"

"My mother, sir."

"How much?"

"All of it, sir."

"Yes, I know. But what is the amount of your allotment?"

"Oh, not quite half an acre, I should say!"—London Tit-Bits.

GERMAN COAL AND IRON PLANTS IN SPITZBERGEN SEIZED BY THE BRITISH

Successful Expedition the Result of an Examination and Report Made by an American Engineer.

Seizure by a British expedition of German mining property and other development plants in Spitzbergen including a big wireless installation, is reported with the intimation that the work of developing immensely rich iron and coal deposits is proceeding It is said they will be of the greatest importance to Great Britain and the Allies.

The expedition to Spitzbergen sailed a few months ago under the protection of the British Navy Sir Earnest Shackleton, the famous Antarctic explorer, was the commander, but he was subsequently obliged to leave to take up other duties His successor, F W S Jones, who returned to London, gave an enthusiastic description of the vast mineral wealth which has hitherto been merely tapped to a limited extent by British, German, Swedish and Norwegian companies

The expedition took a large number of miners and supplies sufficient for three years, and work is now going on on a large scale Captain Wild, who was with Shackloton in the Antarctic is in charge of operations.

A short time ago an American engineer made an exhaustive examination of the coal and other deposits at Spitzbergen and it was largely due to his report that the British expedition, whose success now is reported was undertaken.

WILD GRAPES FOR JELLY

Fruit That Is Generally Neglected Should Be Gathered Without Delay

It seems not to be generally known that the fruit of the small wild grape, usually called chicken grape or pigeon grape which is exceedingly common about Connellsville can be used in making excellent jelly The small size and apparent inedibility of this fruit cause it to be largely neglected, but it yields a comparatively large quantity of juice The United States Department of Agriculture says that the abundance of this fruit makes it a source of food well worthy of attention in these times of scarcity and high prices It is ripening now and readily available, but should be gathered without delay If a milder flavored jelly is preferred—use some tart apples with the grapes To conserve sugar, in making wild grape jelly try corn syrup in place of half the sugar ordinarily used.

MORE COAL

Being Mined in France Notwithstanding the Calls of War on Men.

Despite the calls of war upon the man power of the country, coal mining operations in France during the past year, in certain instances at least, have shown gratifying gains over 1916 Of the four large mines in the northern district two were worked to the utmost The output at Marles for the year is estimated at 2 500 000 tons, against 1,800,000 tons in 1913 At Bruay, the gain was still more remarkable, the estimated 1917 production of 4,500 000 tons exceeding the output of the year before the war by 1 800 000 tons

The annual war production of the mines in the northern region averaged 25 000 000 tons

FAIRER GASOLINE RULES

The decision of the Fuel Administration to substitute a day-to-day conservation plan for the present "gasless" Sunday, will be a much more reasonable, fairer, and ought also to be a more effective, method of bringing about a lessened consumption of this highly important and necessary fuel.

That the curtailment in consumption which has been in effect for some weeks has been the result of a voluntary acquiescence by motor vehicle owners to a request, is a magnificent testimonial to their temper and spirit as patriotic citizens. They have complied with it with but rare exceptions and quite as readily as would have been expected had the request been in the form of an official mandate carrying severe penalties for its violation.

The quick recognition of the national need to save gasoline for war uses, and the willingness to do all that was required to meet the need, is one of the best reasons why some other and better means should be adopted to accomplish the same end. Making Sunday the only day in the week when gasoline saving regulations were in force has worked some hardship to automobile owners, particularly those who are fully engaged on each of the six working days of the week. Depriving such persons of the use of their cars on Sunday has had the effect, in most instances, of depriving them of this form of recreation entirely. Car owners whose circumstances permit them to take pleasure outings on days other than Sunday have therefore enjoyed privileges that were denied other car owners. This condition has operated as a discrimination in favor of this class and against those who are differently circumstanced.

Instances are not lacking in the industrial districts, where workers who are owners of cars have laid off one day a week in order to take an outing which they had been accustomed to take on Sunday before the "gasless" Sunday request was made. Being engaged in the essential war industries the loss of their time has been a more serious detriment to the war program than would have been a larger consumption of gasoline.

The proposed new plan of applying certain conservation rules to the use of gasoline every day in the week including Sunday, will remove the temptation of industrial workers to lay off from their work in order to have a day's pleasure, but of no less importance will be the fact that it will place every car owner, rich and poor, upon the same basis as to privilege in the use of his vehicle. To eliminate the feeling of discrimination which now exists is a consideration of importance second only to saving gasoline for war uses and keeping war work going at top speed.

The Germans are furnishing all the reasons, humane as well as military, why they should not have an armistice.

DOCTORS AND THE PUBLIC

The precautions and regulations that are being adopted to stamp out the influenza epidemic must have the sympathetic aid and coöperation of the public if the purpose sought is to be attained. Each and every citizen must realize that there is an individual responsibility resting upon them to do everything that can possibly be done to check the spread of the malady. In this particular the physicians of the city have furnished a splendid example. While it is their profession and life work to administer to the sick, the services they are at present performing affords a splendid example of public spiritedness.

"Only those who have followed what the war has meant to the medical profession," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "can have any adequate idea of the pressure now being placed on the civilian doctors, to use a loose phrase, by the influenza epidemic.

"Above all, the thing for every one to remember is that if actual contact with contagion be avoided the visitation will soon die out for lack of material. It is the individual transfer of the contagion that counts. And it is to prevent this transfer that all the larger and the lesser precautions have been taken by the authorities. The wisdom of these precautions will be justified by their rigid application for the period of the imposition. For easy-going indifference to the known facts as to the nature of the infection will prolong the epidemic, while a cheerful and intelligent coöperation with the authorities and the helping hand of all those expert and trained enough to aid will rout it all the sooner.

"The part the citizen of common sense will play can easily be forecast. If every one protects himself and assists those afflicted the collective resistance of the city will be enormously increased, and the victory over the disease a comparatively simple one and not too long drawn out. The doctors have responded nobly to the call for aid. Let the laymen supplement their splendid work."

WHAT DEMOCRAT DARE RESIST?

The state leaders of the New Freedom Democracy having only so recently, and with so much emphasis of declaration and vigor of action, repudiated Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, the "wet" Democratic candidate for governor, it is interesting to note with what cordiality, even gladness, the subject of this ruthless excommunication from privileges of the elect is being welcomed to Fayette county by the New Freedom Standard, the erstwhile exponent of Regenerated Democracy in the habitat of the Barefoot Boys.

Extending the hand of greeting as Judge Bonniwell today journeys to the Second City of Fayette, our esteemed contemporary with every evidence of sincerity and earnestness, urges that the judge's reception be "well attended. Especially should every Democrat call and pay his respects to the standard-bearer of his party. Those who do so will find Judge Bonniwell a keen, cultured and courteous gentleman."

Who among the Faithful and Believing, who have accepted National Chairman A. Mitchell Palmer's dictum that "the Democrat party is 'wet,'" dare resist this appeal?

The whole community shares with the members of the Medical Detachment of the 110th Infantry, and the friends of Private Lloyd J. Shaw, the grief they suffer at his death. This organization has performed its duty in so truly a magnificent way that very few of its members are without bodily marks of their devotion and courage, hence the deeper regret that a single member should not have been permitted to return.

Young men may take heart and courage in the fact that the ice cream parlor, like the front parlor, does not come under the closing ban except, of course, as strictly local regulations may apply in the case of the last named place of meeting.

Tomorrow need not be a worshipless Sunday because the authorities have decreed it a churchless Sunday.

With 1,500,000 American soldiers in France, and another 2,000,000 to follow, there will be about all the "military reasons" that Germany will need to accept President Wilson's armistice conditions.

Austria-Hungary and Turkey are on the verge. Buy a few more bonds and watch them verge.

BARN DESTROYED

Flames Lick Up Georges Township Man's Property While He Sleeps.

Special to The Courier.

SMITHFIELD, Oct. 12—O. J. Feather, of Georges township, was in the boro Thursday, having the insurance on his barn adjusted. The structure was burned Saturday night, with all of its contents, consisting of grain, hay and farming implements, entailing a loss of $2,000. He had only $600 insurance.

The origin of the fire is not known. Clarence Black, returning from a trip in his auto at midnight, first discovered it. When he and others living near the B. & O. station arrived at the scene of the fire the roof and sides of the structure had fallen in. At that time Mr. Feather was asleep in his house, near by, and did not know of the fire until appraised by the above parties. Mr. Feather is a conductor on the B. & O.

Rippling Rhymes

By Walt Mason

THE HERO.

For years I'd loafed around the town, without a thing to do and held the steps and railings down, and begged a smoke or chew. With other gossips I was wont to argue by the day, and always liked that sort of stunt, although it didn't pay. But Crowder thundered, "Work or fight!" and meant just what he said, and now I stagger home at night, and worn out go to bed. Each day I face a grievous task that makes my backbone ache; what greater sacrifice, I ask, could any mortal make? They miss me at the checker games and on the bleachers cold, where all the idlers draped their frames in happy days of old. They miss me where they're playing pool, they miss me where they bowl, for I am toiling like a mule, with sorrow in my soul. They miss me at the corner store when all the gaffers meet, to thrash old topics o'er and o'er, as grangers thrash their wheat. They miss me at the village kirk when oyster feasts are held, for I arose and went to work when Crowder up and yelled. I wonder when the war is done if people will forget how I have labored in the sun and left a trail of sweat? Will pretty maids put leaves of oak on my heroic dome, or will I seem a foolish joke when soldier boys come home?

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

TWO VIEWS.

I didn't come to drudge and slave
And work my way unto the grave
I wasn't asked about my birth,
I owe no debt unto the earth.
I see no cause why I should share
The burdens others choose to bear
Let them who will, trudge day by day.
I'll rest and loaf along the way.
Let sages talk of duty fine,
I'll say it's no concern of mine.

I didn't come by chance of birth
To spend a few brief years on earth;
There was some purpose in the plan
That sent me to the land of man.
And though I know it not, nor see
The task that was designed for me,
I will not be a drone and shirk,
But with the toilers I will work.
Life's burdens I will help to bear
And cheerfully I'll do my share.

I came to earth to be a man—
To serve some high and lofty plan;
I didn't come to beg my food,
To be a vagrant, coarse and rude,
To live my given space of time
In rags besmeared with filth and grime.
I came with men to do and dare,
And in their labors I will share.
If they will bravely fight and die
For truth and freedom, so will I.

SAVING TIME

And Mileage Through More Direct Routing of Cars by Shippers.

Director General McAdoo has announced that the Railroad Administration is following up closely the question of eliminating circuitous routing, and is meeting with close cooperation on the part of shippers generally

Several months ago arrangements were made to check billing at the more important points change routing and send cars via direct routes calling attention of the initial lines and shippers to round-about routing

A report of very great interest shows that during a recent month three Wisconsin junctions re-routed 1 221 cars with a saving of 93 750 car miles The real transportation economy in this however is the fact that all these cars were originally routed through Chicago and were diverted to other junctions thereby avoiding handling through Chicago terminals as well as making a saving in car miles

While Heads Are Bared.

LIEUTENANT ELY, it is ours reverently to acknowledge the service you have rendered.

To your country and ours, you gave all you had to give, a life, young and buoyant, offered when you had but just arrived at life's fullest understanding—and more than this no man can give.

But in the giving, sir, you gave as well the outpour of your stout young heart—that all of us to whom you pass along the touch might offer prayer, and carry on in better understanding of that ennobled cause for which no sacrifice shall be in vain.

Some of us are far behind the fighting lines of France today. For circumstance has made two battle lines, and there must be therefore those gone to fight, and others kept behind to carry on at home.

But as you say, both lines bring chance for deeds well done, and great investments too.

Little did you know, Lieutenant Ely, when you went to the post that day, that your last letter to those proud parents you left back home contained a message not alone for them, but, simple and sincere, for all your countrymen as well.

It did, indeed, for you uncovered the heart of all America when you wrote, "I want to say in closing, if anything happens to me let's have no mourning in spirit or in dress, for like a Liberty Bond, it is an investment, not a loss, when a man dies for his country."

The Fourth Liberty Loan is now announced.

Do you think, Lieutenant Ely, that we shall soon forget your admonition—or that we shall not proudly subscribe for all we possibly can of your country's Liberty Bonds, which you so nobly glorified.

Indeed, we can do no less, for it seems to us that each subscription blank must bear your parting salutation—"for like a Liberty Bond, it is an investment, not a loss, when a man dies for his country."

BRIDE of BATTLE

A Romance of the American Army
Fighting on the Battlefields of France

By
VICTOR ROUSSEAU

(Copyright, 1918, by W. G. Chapman.)

CHAPTER XVII.

Hartley sat up on the stretcher and fixed his eyes on Howard's face. It was evident that he was desperately wounded. One of the orderlies kneeled beside him and held him.

"This man," said the General, chewing at his mustache in emotion which he could not altogether hide, "was once an officer in the service of our country. He was engaged in confidential work in the war department. He was accused of espionage—unjustly accused."

With a low cry Eleanor rushed forward and kneeled beside the stricken man; she placed her arms about him and drew his head down upon her shoulder, looking piteously into the weary eyes. Hampton raised her hand to his lips and kissed it.

"Unjustly accused," repeated the General. "Major Kellerman, stand to attention, sir! You shall be heard later. He was the victim of the System, which was even then laying its plans in Washington. He was the victim of a woman named Morsheim—Hilda Morsheim, whose activities were well known, though we could then do nothing to counteract them. She made a specialty of luring young officers into gambling dens, winning large sums from them, and thus leading them down the slope toward disgrace and death.

"She had a confederate who was highly placed in the war department. When, by their united efforts, they failed to make a traitor of Captain Hampton, they compassed his ruin. How they did so I need not describe now. The facts are of record; it is enough to say that they succeeded. Hampton was driven into exile; but they were not satisfied with that. They broke his career, they drove him from the company of all decent men. But that was not enough. They broke his wife's heart; she died. They made his name one of execration. Still they were not satisfied. With devilish ingenuity they sought to cover their tracks by making it appear that Hampton was still carrying on his trade, still selling government secrets. You see why, Colonel?" he continued, turning to Howard. "Because they themselves were continuing their vile work, and the new leakages had to be accounted for."

Kellerman, ghastly white, leaned against the brick wall; he was fumbling nervously in his tunic pocket.

"I suppose, sir, that you are accusing—" he began.

"Be silent, sir! Gentlemen," he continued, addressing Mark and the Colonel, "you are interested in knowing what happened to this man Hampton. He could not rid himself of the belief that justice, though slow, is pretty sure. He had faith in God. Unfortunately he had less faith in himself. Am I wronging you, Hampton?" he continued, addressing Hartley.

"No, sir," muttered the man on the stretcher, feebly.

"He wishes me to tell the whole story. He went to Cuba and flung in his lot with the rebels. He became disgusted with their means and methods, obtained a pardon from General Weyler, and took up his residence in Santiago. The outbreak of the war surprised him there. He knew that Santiago would fall, and he had been warned that he would receive short shrift at the hands of our people.

"He longed for death, but he had two things that kept alive the desire for life. One was his child, the other the [illegible] for vindication, which had become a monomania. He tried to escape into the jungle. He saw that it was hopeless.

"He was hiding in a little hut when he heard footsteps. An American soldier, who had strayed from his company, was coming into the clearing. At that moment a stray bullet caught him in the head, killing him instantly. Hampton saw his chance. He took off the dead man's clothing and put it on; he dressed the body in his own. He knew that by this means he could pass through the lines in the guise of a wounded man, until he had a chance to get rid of his uniform in the cabin of some Cuban, who would be only too well pleased to give him some rags in exchange for it. And, leaving his money and papers on the dead man, he knew that he left his identity behind, for the bullet had destroyed the features.

"There was the child—but Hampton knew that he could take her no further. With the Americans she would receive food—which he had not—and shelter and protection. Afterward he would regain her. He lurked in the bushes until he saw Captain Wallace appear, watched him, trusted him, and went away.

"He learned of the child's adoption, and for years he haunted her home, her school, all places that were her residence, ever craving her, ever restrained by the realization that, till his name was cleared, he had no right to her. His idea of vindication had become, as I said, a monomania.

"Now, gentlemen, I have little time to spare, but I must carry this story to the end. I said that he had less faith in himself than he had in God. Once, for three years, Hampton lost his child. She had gone to San Francisco. In his despair he went to Washington, he sought out Hilda Morsheim, who was still plying her trade, and begged, as he had never begged anyone, that she would vindicate his name."

There was a stillness as of utter death inside the little cave.

"She saw in him one of those useful spies such as her organization used, broken men with inside knowledge of conditions. She used him, held out promises, broke them; in his despair he made himself a slave to her and—and her confederate, forgetting his manhood and what he had been. Time and again they broke faith with him. He had just realized that he had nothing to hope for from them when Captain Wallace appeared on the scene."

"Yes, he was a rotten dog, sir," said Kellerman, with the ghost of a smile. "Is is on such evidence that you presume—?"

"No, sir, it is not!" thundered the General. "It is on the evidence of the woman Hilda Morsheim, alias Kenson, secured by Hampton under circumstances which—"

Kellerman uttered a low cry; he was trembling now, and all his bravado seemed to have oozed away.

"This woman, strangely enough, loved her confederate," went on the General remorselessly, fixing his eyes full on Kellerman's now, while Kellerman blinked like a bat in daylight, and turned his head weakly from side to side, as if under the intolerable glare of a searchlight. "Her claims on him were strong enough, God knows! She wanted him to marry her, to take her away from the old scenes that they might have a chance to redeem their wretched lives together. He had promised her that so many times—and the worst of women is as wax in the hands of the man she loves.

"But he had become infatuated with another with a girl as much above him as—"

With a cry that seemed hardly human Colonel Howard sprang toward Kellerman, his fingers twitching as if he sought to fasten them about his throat. Mark caught him and held him, while the old man swayed to and fro, his outstretched arm extended toward Kellerman as if in imprecation.

Eleanor, at Hartley's side, did not even look toward them.

"This woman, Morsheim—Kenson—whatever you call her, came to France, upon receipt of a message which had cut her to the heart, shown her the hopelessness of her dreams, and taught her that the one man in whom she had believed was worthless clay. To do her justice, let us suppose that, even in her worst acts, she had been sustained by a sense of duty to her country.

"You Are Under Arrest."

"She met her confederate in an inn at a village not far distant. Frantic at her appearance, he induced her to let him drive her back through the lines, and on the way renewed his lying promises. This time she doubted him.

"Two men had overheard their conversation. One was Captain Wallace, whom the pair had broken as they broke poor Hampton. Him the traitor had seen, and he devised a scheme to send him to the trenches and contrive to have him sent on a false and fatal errand. With that point I shall not now deal. The other man was Hampton, who had enlisted under an alias, in the belief that he would obtain a clue that would unmask the traitor. He contrived to go back through the lines, found the woman, and somehow—perhaps by God's wonderful mercy—obtained her signed confession—which I have here, in full!"

He wheeled upon Kellerman. "Major Kellerman," he said in a deep voice that vibrated almost with pity, so charged with significance that its meaning could not escape either Howard or Mark, "you are under arrest. You will go toward your quarters, first removing your belt and arms."

Kellerman saluted weakly and stumbled out of the cave. The General looked at Mark.

"The soldier Weston receives a free and full pardon for his valor in the field this day," he said. "He is also discharged honorably from the service of the United States government."

Mark looked at the general in astonishment; this was the last thing that he desired.

The General approached and clapped him on the shoulder. "Captain Wallace," he said, "your written resignation from the United States army cannot be accepted, owing to the state of war. After the war it will receive consideration. In the meantime you will resume your duties on the headquarters staff."

Tears rushed to Mark's eyes. He tried to speak, he was conscious that the General and Howard were shaking him by the hand; and then a quick glance from Eleanor drew him to where she kneeled by Hartley.

SPANISH INFLUENZA—WHAT IT IS AND HOW IT SHOULD BE TREATED

Nothing New—Simply the Old Grip, or La Grippe, That Was Epidemic in 1889-90, Only Then It Came From Russia By Way of France and This Time By Way of Spain.

Go to Bed and Stay Quiet—Take a Laxative—Eat Plenty of Nourishing Food—Keep Up Your Strength—Nature Is the Only "Cure."

NO OCCASION FOR PANIC.

ALWAYS CALL A DOCTOR

Spanish influenza, which appeared in Spain in May, has all the appearance of grip or la grippe, which has swept over the world in numerous epidemics as far back as history runs. Hippocrates refers to an epidemic in 412 B. C. which is regarded by many to have been influenza. Every century has had its attacks. Beginning with 1831, this country has had five epidemics, the last in 1889-90.

There is no occasion for panic—influenza itself has a very low percentage of fatalities—not over one death out of every four hundred cases, according to the N. C. Board of Health. The chief danger lies in complications arising, attacking principally, patients in a run down condition—those who don't go to bed soon enough, or those who get up too early.

THE SYMPTOMS.

Grippe, or influenza as it is now called, usually begins with a chill followed by aching, feverishness and sometimes nausea and dizziness, and a general feeling of weakness and depression. The temperature is from 100 to 104, and the fever usually lasts from three to five days. The germs attack the mucous membrane, or lining of the air passages—nose, throat and bronchial tubes—there is usually a hard cough, especially bad at night, often times a sore throat or tonsilitis, and frequently all the appearances of a severe head cold.

THE TREATMENT.

Go to bed at the first symptoms, not only for your own sake but to avoid spreading the disease to others—take a purgative, eat plenty of nourishing food, remain perfectly quiet and don't worry. Quinine, asprin or Dover's Powder, etc., may be administered by the physician's directions to relieve the aching. But there is no cure or specific for influenza—the disease must run its course. Nature herself will throw off the attack if only you keep up your strength. The chief danger lies in the complications which may arise. Influenza so weakens the bodily resistance that there is danger of pneumonia or bronchitis developing, and sometimes inflammation of the middle ear, or heart affections. For these reasons, it is very important that the patient remain in bed until his strength returns—stay in bed at least two days or more after the fever has left you, or if you are over 50 or not strong, stay in bed four days or more, according to the severity of the attack.

EXTERNAL APPLICATIONS.

In order to stimulate the lining of the air passages to throw off the grippe germs, to aid in loosening the phlegm and keeping the air passages open, thus making the breathing easier, Vick's VapoRub will be found effective. Hot, wet towels should be applied over the throat, chest and back between the shoulder blades to open the pores. Then VapoRub should be rubbed in over the parts until the skin is red, spread on thickly and covered with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck as the heat of the body liberates the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication directly to the parts affected. At the same time, VapoRub is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface, and thus aids in relieving the congestion within.

HOW TO AVOID THE DISEASE.

Evidence seems to prove that this is a germ disease, spread principally by human contact, chiefly thru coughing, sneezing or spitting. So avoid persons having colds—which means avoiding crowds—common drinking cups, roller towels, etc. Keep up your bodily strength by plenty of exercise in the open air, and good food. Above all, keep free from colds, as colds irritate the lining of the air passages and render them much better breeding places for the germs.

Use Vick's VapoRub at the very first sign of a cold. For a head cold, melt a little VapoRub in a spoon and inhale the vapors, or better still, use VapoRub in a benzoin steam kettle. If this is not available, use an ordinary tea-kettle. Fill half full of boiling water, put in half a teaspoon of VapoRub from time to time. Keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.

NOTE—Vick's VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina druggist, who found how to combine, in a salve form, Menthol and Camphor with such volatile oils as Eucalyptus, Thyme, Cubebs, etc., so that when the salve is applied to the body heat, these ingredients are liberated in the form of vapors.

VapoRub is comparatively new in New York state and New England and a few Western states where it is just now being introduced, but in other sections of the country it is the standard home remedy in more than a million homes for all forms of cold troubles. Over six million jars were sold last year. It is particularly recommended for children's croup or colds, since it is externally applied and therefore can be used as freely as desired without the slightest harmful effects. VapoRub can be had in three sizes at all druggists.

EACH SOLDIER IN FRANCE MAY HAVE ONE XMAS PACKAGE

War Department Co-operating to See That Parcels Are Delivered.

INFORMATION IN FULL

For Preparation and Mailing of Parcels to Insure Their Delivery in Perfect Condition Contained in the Instructions Herewith Printed.

The War Department is desirous that each man serving in the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe shall receive a remembrance from home at Christmas time, and advises that because of transportation and distribution difficulties but one parcel of standard size and weight can be sent to each. To this end arrangements have been made with the War Department whereby Christmas parcels may be mailed to members of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe under the following conditions:

1. Each soldier or other member of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe will be allowed to receive one Christmas parcel for which purpose he will be furnished, through army channels, a "Christmas Parcel Label" bearing the correct name and address of the soldier or member and also the name of the person designated to mail the parcel. The labels will be prepared to serve as address labels for the parcels. The label furnished each soldier or other member of the American Expeditionary Forces will be sent by him to the person who is to mail the Christmas parcel. No Christmas parcel for members of the Expeditionary Forces in Europe will be accepted for transmission without such label.

2. All Christmas parcels must be of standard size, three inches by four inches by nine inches, and shall not exceed three pounds in weight, for which purpose cartons of the size prescribed will be distributed through the local Red Cross Chapters throughout the country. No person will be furnished a carton except upon presentation of a "Christmas Parcel Label" received from abroad.

3. The parcels must contain no prohibited or unmailable articles. Perishable food products are not permitted.

4. After the cartons have been filled by the persons who receive them, they shall be returned to a Red Cross receiving station where inspectors appointed by the Red Cross will carefully supervise its wrapping and the affixing of the "Christmas Parcel Label" and the necessary postage stamps, the latter to be furnished by the sender of the parcel. Where the parcels have thus been packed and wrapped and otherwise prepared for transmission, the Red Cross will affix to each parcel a certificate in the form of a seal showing that the parcel has been inspected and contains no prohibited or unmailable matter. Such certificates will be accepted by the Postal Service and Army authorities as evidence that the parcels conform to the conditions prescribed and obviate the necessity of subsequent examination. The parcels must be left at the Red Cross receiving stations which will deposit them in the mails for dispatch.

5. Christmas parcels must bear the name and address of the sender and will be addressed substantially as follows:

"Christmas Box Department, Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, N. J.
For ______________ Organization ______________
American Expeditionary Forces"

Parcels so addressed will be chargeable with postage at the fourth class or parcel post zone rate applicable between the office where mailed and Hoboken, New Jersey, to be prepaid by stamps affixed

6. Parcels may bear inscriptions such as "Please do not open until Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes" and the like.

7. In order to assure the arrival of Christmas parcels abroad and the delivery to the addressees by Christmas all such parcels must be mailed on or before November 20, 1918.

The foregoing does not in any way change the instructions heretofore issued regarding the acceptance of parcels up to seven pounds in weight for members of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe which contain articles sent in response to the written request of a member approved by his regimental commander or other officer authorized to approve such requests.

CHRISTMAS PARCELS FOR MEN IN THE NAVAL SERVICE

The Navy Department has advised that parcels intended for officers and men on United States naval vessels in home waters and abroad or stationed at naval bases or stations in foreign waters should conform to the following conditions:

1. Parcels may not exceed 20 pounds in weight and must be so prepared for mailing that the contents can be readily examined. Substantial boxes or other suitable containers should be used.

2. The parcels must bear the name and address of the sender in the upper left corner of the address side and be addressed in the following manner:

(a) Name of addressee in full together with his rank or rating.

(b) The designation of vessel or station or naval base to which addressee is attached.

(c) "Care of Supply Officer, Fleet Supply Base, 29th St., and Third Ave., Bush Terminal Station, Brooklyn, New York."

(d) The words "Christmas Box" or "Christmas Present."

3. Parcels prepared and addressed in accordance with the foregoing will be chargeable with postage at the fourth-class or parcel post zone rate applicable between post office where mailed and Brooklyn, New York.

4. No perishable food products other than those packed in tin containers should be inclosed in Christmas parcels.

5. Parcels may bear inscriptions such as "Please do not open until Christmas," "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes" and the like; also the names and quantities of articles inclosed together with such other marks or words as may be necessary "for purpose of description" of the articles.

6. Christmas parcels for naval officers and men should be mailed as soon as possible so as to reach Bush Terminal Station not later than November 15, 1918.

Under rulings and orders of the United States Fuel Administration consumers of natural gas are to be divided into classes, based upon their necessity for this form of fuel. The supplying companies are forbidden to deliver gas to a consumer of any class until they have delivered to the consumers' of every class designated by a lower number, all natural gas to be delivered under contract or under the district fuel administrator's orders.

According to the ruling of the Fuel Administration Class No. 1 includes domestic consumers, who are allowed to use a "reasonable amount" of gas for lighting, heating and cooking in private houses, boarding houses, apartment houses, hospitals and other charitable institutions; but only for lighting and cooking in hotels, restaurants, bakeries and eating places, and heating in hotels where separate rooms are dependent upon natural gas for use in grates and stoves. This class also includes gas-engine power for the production and distribution of natural gas and petroleum and their products and the operation of gas engines for the production of coal.

Class No. 2 limits the use of natural gas to engine power, including the generating of electric current for industrial purposes to plants engaged in manufacturing munitions and other essential war articles under government orders to the extent that current is needed in the manufacture of such orders.

Class No. 3 embraces the use of gas where now used for heating buildings not included in Classes 1 and 2, and all other classes of gas engines where other power cannot be used, and for gas engines for generating electric current for street cars and domestic service, the heating and lighting of business offices and stores where other means for the production of heat and light cannot reasonably be substituted.

Class No. 4 limits the use of natural gas for the production of food products, and industrial consumers engaged in manufacturing munitions and other essential war articles to the extent that gas is needed in the manufacture of essential war articles under government orders, and for the generating of steam power for public utilities.

Class No. 5 includes the use of natural gas for all other purposes.

Classification of users of natural gas contracted for hereafter will be fixed by the Fuel Administration and dealers in such fuel will be under the control, in their operations, of the local fuel administrators of their districts.
